Jenny Lind at Home.

It hardly seems possible that the quaint little old lady, Mme. Lind Goldschmidt, with whom I have recently spent so charming an evening, is really the same "Jenny Lind" who thrilled the world with her unparalleled voice and made it ring with her praises a generation or more ago. Although never a truly beautiful woman, the great cantatrice, judging from the many different portraits that are hanging about her house, must formerly have been attractive and engaging in her appearance, but to-day she is the plainest, most old-fashioned little body imaginable, dressing in the style of thirty-five years ago, with a funny little cape folded over her shoulders and a curiously fashioned cap on her head, underneath which her hair is drawn down smoothly on her face over her ears. Added to these peculiarities, she wears a dress made in a perfectly plain manner, "gathered" into a belt at the waist and with no attempt whatever at ornamentation in the way of trimming or overskirt. Few people, I fancy, save her very intimate friends, are aware of the exceedingly romantic nature of Jenny Lind's marriage, not so many years ago, to Mr. O.
Goldschmidt, who is perhaps fully fifteen years her junior, and, although a bald-headed, rather elderly looking gentleman, still appears to be much younger than his talented wife. When Jenny Lind came to America Sir Jules Benedict also came as her accompanist. He was obliged to return for some reason suddenly to England, and the great singer brought her of a poor young German musician, who she had met some time before in Germany, and, as soon as possible, secured his services in the place of Sir Jules Benedict. The young man, like all who came within sound of the magical voice, soon became Jenny Lind's ardent admirer and presently her slave. Never dreaming that he might in any way hope for a return of his passion, he determined to leave her, and, upon announcing this fact, and telling her he could no longer endure her perfect indifference to him, she told him of her concealed love for him, and they soon went together to England, where they were married and have since lived. Their present residence is 1 Morton Gardens, Bolton, S. W., and is a comfortable rather than a pretensious abode. It is full of souvenirs of Jenny Lind's early triumphs, and there are also many valuable pictures. A large portrait of the Princess Christian is hung in a conspicuous place, and is the gift of her Royal Highness, who was a favorite pupil and is now a warm friend of Mme. Lind-Goldschmidt, often coming to visit her in the most informal way. Jenny Lind is also a great favorite with the Queen and the royal family generally. Madame Lind Goldschmidt has three children, one daughter, and two sons, none of them, however, having the least musical talent. One is in the army. There is little left of the once glorious voice of Jenny Lind, and she rarely uses it at all except in instructing some pupil who to render a passage of a song. She is a most charitable woman, and for some years has had a class of ten poor girls whom she teaches twice a week at her own home, and prepares for opera and concert. She is, however, very careful in selecting for this class only those who have very decided talent and unusual natural voice. The failing health of the "greatest singer that has ever lived" will deprive many a poor girl of her valuable instruction, and perhaps the musical world of some brilliant stars.—London Cor., Philadelphia Press.

Jenny Lind was born sixty-six years ago today.

A FRIENDLY SUIT.—Counsel for Mrs. Maria L.
Travers, the widow of the late Wm. R. Travers, stated yesterday that the proceeding brought by her before Surrogate Rollins to secure the removal of her son, John Travers, as co-executor of the estate is an entirely friendly proceeding. In her petition to the surrogate Mrs. Travers says that the son takes no interest whatever in the business affairs of the estate, and is incapacitated by physical ailments from attending properly to his duties as executor. The son for many months has had partial paralysis.—New York Sun.

The Prince of Wales is said to be an expert performer on the banjo.

The company is incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, and the stock is non-assessable, and carries with it no personal liability to the holder.

The Gold Mining Company (location, Music Mountains, A. T.) is as sound a mining enterprise as was ever placed on the market, and its possibilities have never been exhausted. Every share should double in value within a year, and they may quadruple, as they are based on property that would ordinarily have been capitalized ten (10) times as great on account of its known richness and promise.

The shares are made small so that any one can invest. Subscriptions for five shares are as welcome as those for hundreds.

Every dollar of earnings will go to the stockholders in dividends, as there is nothing else that they can be used for.

A Wiswell mill, capacity 20 tons per day, with powerful machinery, has been purchased and will be on the ground ready for erection at the mine within the next thirty days.

The solid basis upon which the company is founded and the practical proofs of the richness of the mine have already secured the confidence of the public, and the stock has steadily advanced in selling value.
Within the last few days bona fide sales have been made AT PAR.

There is no better stock on the market for a permanent investment.
For full information in regard to this Mine apply to the
